District 4 News

March 2014

News & Views from around your community

Greetings!

The weather outside may not be signaling anything that feels like spring, but be assured the first day of spring is only weeks away, falling this year on Thursday, March 20.

In this issue we'll focus on spring events and spring traditions to help us get our minds off the Winter of 2014, which has left many of us ready for warmer weather and sunnier days.

Let's start by turning our attention to a favorite spring pastime – baseball – and the opening of the Hubert V. Simmons Museum of Negro Leagues Baseball. The museum is set to open Thursday, March 27, in the County Campus Building at the Metro Centre at Owings Mills. See inside for a feature on this highly anticipated addition to our community.

As spring approaches, it's time to get outside and do some spring clean-up after months of shoveling snow and spreading salt. See information inside for help with getting rid of hazardous items around the house, organizing a community clean-up, and getting involved in your neighborhood community group.

Meanwhile, it's time to celebrate our local history, with upcoming events honoring Maryland's own Harriet Tubman, and her links to Baltimore County and our own community through the Emmart-Pierpont Safe House on Rolling Road. See inside for details on these special events.

Please check inside for news, events and updates from around the Fourth District and the county. As always, if you need to reach my office, give us a call at 410-887-3389, or email us at council4@baltimorecountymd.gov. We are here to serve you.

Thanks again for the opportunity to continue working for you.

Batter Up for Opening Day

Hubert V. Simmons Museum of Negro Leagues Baseball Opens

The new home of the Hubert V. Simmons Museum of Negro Leagues Baseball is set to officially open at the County Campus Building at the Metro Centre at Owings Mills on Thursday, March 27, 11:30 a.m. The collection was started by Ray Banks and the idea for the museum grew through his friendship with former Negro Leagues players and their families, including Hubert V. Simmons. Simmons was a former Baltimore Elite Giants player. The museum was opened after his death, with continued support from his wife, Audrey Simmons.

Formerly housed in the basement of Lochearn Presbyterian Church, the new location is in the County Campus Building, 10302 Grand Central Ave., home to the Owings Mills branch of the Baltimore County Public Library and CCBC Owings Mills campus. The larger facility will allow more people to learn about black ball players who began playing baseball almost 100 years ago.

The museum is housed in a unique fashion, with visitors starting their tour in the ground floor exhibits, then taking the elevator to the succeeding 2nd and 3rd floors, where museum patrons will step out of the elevator and into the colorful exhibits, featuring baseball artifacts, photos, life-sized player figures, and histories of the teams and players that made the leagues great.

During four decades in Baltimore, there were two talented black teams, the Baltimore Black Sox, and the Baltimore Elite Giants. This was during a time when blacks were not allowed to play baseball with white players.

"The Hubert V. Simmons Museum of Negro Leagues Baseball is a local gem – put together and maintained by a dedicated group of women and men who refuse to let us forget who paved the way for the likes of Jackie Robinson, Willie Mays and our own Frank Robinson," Councilman Oliver said. "Many thanks to Executive Director Audrey Simmons, Curator Ray Banks and the dedicated board and volunteers, supporters and donors, who have kept the memory of Negro Leagues Players alive so that we, and generations to come, can enjoy and celebrate the accomplishments and lives of the men and women who helped make America's Favorite Pastime truly legendary."

Councilman Oliver with Woodstock Job Corps Center student Alexis Diaz, 19

Councilman Oliver was pleased to have two Woodstock Job Corps Center students visit the Baltimore County Council offices and chambers for Job Shadow Day to see the inner workings of county government during County Council Work Session on February 11. He was impressed by Alexis Diaz and Taniesha Beckford's interest and enthusiasm. Both students are training in security. "I would be pleased to have the students visit again," he said. He was also happy that a student returned for the February 18 Legislative Session, where the items discussed on February 11 were voted on. Councilman Oliver is looking forward to keeping in touch with the students and following their career progress. He is also looking forward to visiting the Woodstock Job Corps Center soon.
